The film's setting is a futuristic prison in the city of Kabul. It chronicles the lives of prisoners that are seeking revenge for their crimes. These people are hiding in the society, and trying to unleash terror on the world. None of these people have passports or any legal documents. The world of the future will see this genre explode, even though the science fiction genre has already been around for a long time. They use new theories to create a world where these theories are always used. What the law said: if you are a prisoner and you do not have enough food in prison, the government has the right to seize everything that you own, including your wife. If you are a prisoner and you commit a crime, the government has the right to decide what you will do with the rest of your life. Is this all right? What do you think? What do you think about being a prisoner in the future? I finally realized why it was so hard to create a proper video. It's not the technical side, not even the hours spent on the website. It's about my own approach to the issue. I have been using many different methods and tools in the past, but I never realized that they are not working for me. For example, when I was learning how to write properly in English, I used grammar manuals, and just memorized sentences. It wasn't effective. When I was learning how to play a musical instrument, I simply followed some tabs, and I was able to play a few songs. I was working without deep research and without actually trying to understand the principles. If you are interested in the theme of revenge, this film will interest you. It's about a thief that finds out about the criminals in the village where he lives, and gets revenge for all of the crimes they have committed. This is a story about a criminal who fights against the system and the government, because he has the feeling that the system is going to win. I like this idea because a prisoner becomes a hero, and this makes the movie much more interesting to me. I can never remember the names of the directors, and I never want to. I think that this is more important than names. I like to forget about the name of 82157476af
